STORM HITS IN NORTHERN RUSH

Cuts Swath Through County Sunday Afternoon, Causing Considerable Damage, According to Reports.

TELEPHONE SERVICE CUT OFF

Fred Huddleson's Barn Near Dunreith is Burned to Ground at a Loss of $3,000.

A storm cut a swath through the northern part of Rush county about a half mile wide and a few miles long, according to reports received here today, and did some serious damage, but the exact nature of it could not be learned because the telephone lines in that section of the county were out of commission.

Rain fell in torrents here, but it
and the electrical display was mild compared with the storm in northern Rush county, according to information brought to Rushville today by people who were on the edge of the storm district.

It is reported that the strip where the storm was worst was near Pete Hollowell's and S. L. Newhouse's farms. The wind carried every tree and fence before it, according to reports. Fruit that was almost matured was blown from the trees and much grain was blown down. There was much oats in the shock that was scattered all about the fields.
Fortunately most of the threshing was finished in northern Rush county else
the wheat shocks would have been badly damaged.

The lightning was most intense at the farm of Fred Huddleson, near Dunreith. Lightning struck the barn and it was burned to the ground. Two horses were consumed in the flames along with a number of farming implements, vehicles and large quantities of hay and grain.
The loss is placed near three thousand and dollars, but it is not known whether there was any insurance.

It was reported here today that the barn on the Omer Gartin farm
north of the city, had been hit by lightning and burned, but this developed into a false alarm. Lightning struck and fired a strawstack
very near the barn. The stack burned up, but the fire was kept away
from the barn.

The storm in Rushville was hardly threatening. There were several showers during the afternoon, but none of them brought any relief
from the heat that was very disagreeable after the fine temperature
of the week just closed.

Today started like it was going to be agreeable and give this week a send off like last week had. The mercury stood at sixty-eight degrees
at six o'clock, but had risen to ninety-five before noon. The weather man promised cooler weather today,
but there was something vitally wrong with the levers. The warm weather one was still on late today.
He promises cooler weather with fair skies.

TO ADVERTISE CHAUTAUQUA.

A party of motorists will go to Glenwood, Falmouth, Fairview, Raleigh and Mays this evening advertising the chautauqua which will begin next Sunday. The autoists will leave Wolcott's drug store at six-thirty o'clock. Everyone is invited to make the trip.

Miss Lois Reynolds of Selmour,
guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Arbuckle, sang a beautiful and much appreciated solo at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

—Miss Irene Caverly and Gerald Hiat of Newcastle visited here over Sunday.

FRANK RISK WAS ARRESTED

Started Rough House This Morning
While Drunk.

Frank Risk was arrested this morning by Policeman Wolter after he had smashed about all the furniture at his home in North Sexton street, according to the police. Risk was intoxicated and started a rough house breaking dishes, chairs and about everything he could get hold of. He ran his wife from home.
Risk was hauled to jail and started to leave while Wolter was unlocking the door, but was captured. He will face Mayor Black tomorrow morning.

INJURY TO SPINE MAY PROVE FATAL

Ernest R. Cooley, Frederick, Md., Painfully Hurt in Fall in Front of Hand Car.

ACCIDENT NEAR MORRISTOWN

Ernest R. Cooley of Fredrick, Md., employed on the construction gang
that is placing the automatic block signal system on the C. H. & D. railway, sustained a painful injury to his spine yesterday morning that may prove fatal. Cooley fell in front of a hand car near Morristown while going out to work. He landed on his back falling in the path of the car.

The weight of the car and the force of the fall injured his spine and Cooley suffered intense pain. He was brought here by Dr. Cox of Morristown who hoped to give him treatment at the Sexton hospital. The hospital here is closed for the summer and Dr. Sexton is out of the city. Cooley required the attention only to be had at a hospital and he was taken to Indianapolis and placed in the Deaconess hospital. It is not known for sure whether the spine
was fractured as a close examination
was not made here.

CONTEST WILL BEGIN SUNDAY

Christian Bible Schools of This City and Winchester, Ky., to Compete For Honors.

IS TO CONTINUE 12 WEEKS

The Main Street Christian Bible school will begin a contest next Sunday with the Christian Bible school of Winchester, Kentucky, which is the largest Bible school in the state. Walter Frazee, son of Mr.
and Mrs. John H. Frazee of this city, who is at the head of the Bible school work in the Christian churches of Kentucky, challenged the Winchester school in the name of the Rushville school several weeks ago
and much time has been spent in making final arrangements.

Special interest is attached to the contest in view of the fact that the Rev. J. H. MacNeill, formerly pastor of the Main Street Christian church, is pastor of the Winchester church now. The contest will continue for twelve Sundays. The contest will be conducted on the following points: attendance, new scholars, collection and per cent of teachers present. The local school expects to win even though Winchester
has the largest school in Kentucky.

PARSON ONCE RESIDED HERE

Dr. Loren M. Edwards, Well Known in Rushville, Arouses Investigation in Mishawaka.

SAYS LAW ENFORCEMENT LAX

Although Council Gives Officials
Clean Bills at Inquiry, "Fighting Parson" Persists.

The Rev. Loren M. Edwards, D. D., pastor of the Eberhardt Methodist church at Mishawaka, who, by his forceful sermons, caused an investigation by the Mishawaka city council of the disregard for the law, formerly resided in Rushville and is well known here. He will be remembered specially by members of the St. Paul
M. E. church.

At the time of the Rev. Mr. Edwards' residence in Rushville he did not have a charge. He at one time resided at Milroy, his father being presiding elder of this district of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The Rev. Mr. Edwards' persistent attack from the pulpit against Mayor John A. Heroy of Mishawaka and of the city officials because of the alleged non-enforcement of the laws
made an investigation by the Mishawaka city council necessary. The inquiry was conducted last week and Saturday, the council gave the city officials a clean bill. In a sermon
last night, the Rev. Mr. Edwards renewed his attack.

"Notwithstanding the whitewash-ing in the investigation conducted by the Common Council," he declared,
the people of the city can not be convinced that the present administration has attempted to close saloons
on Sundays or to stop gambling.
God's work must go on and must win, and if the indictment of the chief of police is necessary or the removal of the mayor or the discred-
iting of the administration is needed,
then woe to those who stand against the army of God."

Dr. Edwards declared he had no intention of promoting the candidacy of any man or party, but said that he would continue to fight until the laws are enforced.

As the result of the evidence possessed by the "fighting parson," the church people of Mishawaka, the dispatches say, intend to demand that the investigation be taken up by a special grand jury rather than by the city council.

Dr. Edwards was on the witness stand in the councilmanic inquiry
Friday, but little evidence of importance was brought out other than that the saloons flagrantly violate the Sunday closing laws. The Rev. Edwards said on the witness stand that he was able to prove Ben. Jarrett, formerly chief of police, had an offer of $200 as a bribe from saloon men. He admitted he had preached to his congregation that officials might be accepting a "rakeoff" from saloon men and gamblers, but that he had no direct evidence.

Edwards was questioned particularly in regard to the story he had notified Harvey Frick, chief of police,
on Sunday that saloons were open,
and that Frick ordered him out of his office. Dr. Edwards testified that Frick had said he was too busy to take care of the matter just then,
and that he said he would attend to it later.

Frick, on the stand, said he sent out two of his policemen later and that they found no saloons open.
Asked why no arrests were made at the time Dr. Edwards was at his office, he said he presumed the minister had the evidence and that he would attend to the prosecution.

DENY RECEIVING FUND OF $23,000

Indiana Friends of James E. Watson Says Mulhall May Have Collected it But—

NEVER GIVEN TO COMMITTEE

Former Congressman Expects to Renew Efforts to Get Before Lobby Committee.

Louis Ludlow contributes in a Washington dispatch the following concerning the trend of the Senate lobby investigation in Washington as it is related to James E. Watson and his campaign for governor in 1908:

A mine is being planted under Col.
Martin M. Mulhall in connection with his political operations in Indiana in the campaign of 1908 and, if the Senate lobby probe committee will permit, the fuse will be lighted as soon as James E. Watson, D. M.
Parry, James P. Goodrich and other Hoosiers can get on the witness stand.

Mr. Watson is still "hanging around" Washington and he will call tomorrow on Chairman Overman of the lobby committee and make another demand that he shall be allowed to take the witness chair in his own defense.

Incidentally he and some of his Indiana friends are planning a surprise package for the colonel. They propose to show that there is an unexplained mystery connected with the sum of $23,000 which Col. Mulhall swears he collected in Indiana from manufacturers and business men who were allied with the National Association of Manufacturers.

That Col. Mulhall went over Indiana soliciting donations for Mr.
Watson's campaign is certain. What became of these donations is the mystery which Mr. Watson and others proposes to spring on the witness stand if the committee will submit to having the colonel grilled.

If Mulhall did hold up Indiana
manufacturers in a wholesale way,
as he admits in his correspondence,
what became of their donations?

Mulhall swore that D. M. Parry, C.
C. Foster and C. C. Hanch got in an automobile, went the rounds of a number of manufacturing establishments in Indianapolis and collected $3,000 for Watson.

"I told Mr. Hanch of Mr. Watson's need of money," continues the colonel, "and had him carry to Mr. Watson $1,000 of the $3,000 collected.
Later on, at the suggestion of Mr.
Watson, I sent Mr. Parry to him with another $1,000."

Commenting on this testimony, Mr.
Parry said today: "It is an absolute lie."

Mr. Parry will testify that he never helped to raise the $3,000, as alleged, and never took a dollar to Watson. Hanch will testify that he never took $1,000 to Watson, as alleged. Watson will testify that he never got a dollar from Hanch or Parry.

Mulhall, in his reports to the association, said that he went among the manufacturers of South Bend, Fort Wayne and other places, that they promised they would send $20,- 000 to the state committee and that he was told afterward by D. M.
Parry and State Chairman Goodrich that the amount they actually sent in to aid Watson was about $22,000.

Goodrich has written a letter to Watson, which the latter has just received, denying the charge in the most sweeping manner and stating that he would be glad to come to Washington and testify before the Overman committee that not a dollar of the alleged $22,000 fund, which

PETE MUMERT FILES SUIT

Wants Divorce From His Wife Cora Mumert.

Peter A. Mumert has filed suit for divorce from Cora Mumert. Mumert alleges that his wife abandoned him without cause March 22, 1910, and has not lived with him since. They were married in 1909. His wife is said to be living in Ohio. Mumert also charges his wife with cruel and inhuman treatment and states that she was addicted to the drug habit
and frequently used intoxicating liquor to excess. Albert Stevens represents Mumert.

TICKETS BEING SOLD OUT FAST

Secretary Scholl Finds Very Few in Hands of Guarantors of Annual Chautauqua.

AN INDICATION OF SUCCESS

J. H. Scholl who called on the chautauqua guarantors this morning
said that he never remembered when fewer tickets were left in the hands of the guarantors at this time. The chautauqua officials are elated at the manner in which the tickets have been selling. They believe it an indication of the most successful assembly ever held.

Secretary Scholl today called the attention of the guarantors to the fact that they should be ready to settle for their tickets by Thursday,
the last day of July. He announced that children's tickets may be procured at Wolcott's or Hargrove & Mullin's drug stores.

The Rev. C. M. Yocum of the Main Street Christian church announced at the coliseum last night that the Rush County Chautauqua association was offering $2,200 worth of talent for $1.50. He announced the program in detail and set forth that if a person attended each program
and paid single admissions, it would cost $4.90.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD

Albert G. Vance Passed Away Saturday in Anderson.

The funeral services of Albert G.
Vance, a former resident of this city,
were held this afternoon at his late residence in Anderson. Mr. Vance was a brother of James D. Vance and Cicero Vance of this city, and moved to Anderson about seven years ago. He was seventy-five years old and died Saturday evening about seven o'clock. Besides the two brothers here, he is survived by his widow and four children, two sons and two daughters. James L. Vance, Miss Rexie Vance and Cicero Vance
attended the funeral services.

A STIFF FINE, TOO.

Columbus Republican: To prove that the law concerning the washing of milk bottles is violated in Rush-
ville, at least in the instance cited,
the Rushville Republican tells of the finding of two dimes and a nickel in a bottle of milk. The only speculation in the premises by the Rushville paper is whether the customer ever got the quarter's worth of tickets, and if so, if the milk dealer had to lose the price and a stiff fine besides for failure to wash and sterilize a milk bottle before refilling it.

INSINCERITY WORST TRAIT

Brings Down Discredit on Head of Christian, Minister at Union Services Declares.

THE REV. S. L. ROBERTS TALKS

Hard-Hearted Sincerity That is Offensive is Termed Unchristian
by the Visitor.

Lack of sincerity will bring down
more discredit on the head of the Christian than the lack of any other trait, according to the Rev. S. L.
Roberts, a Baptist minister, who addressed the union meeting at the coliseum last night. Mr. Roberts is at the head of the Sunday school and young peoples' work of the church in Indiana.

The minister told of a visit to the Michigan City prison. He was shown through the institution by the chaplain and learned that whenever a man came there, he was put at the thing he could do best. The Rev.
Mr. Roberts said he observed to the chaplain that he presumed the chaplain never had any difficulty finding a substitute when he wanted to leave
over a Sunday. The chaplain replied he would. The Rev. Mr. Roberts said he answered he thought it strange because there seemed to be a few ministers in the penitentiary.
But the chaplain said the prisoners
wouldn't stand for it.

"And there you have it in a nutshell," said the Rev. Mr. Roberts.
"The prisoners would not stand for
it. The man who tells even them how they shall live must lead the right sort of life himself."

The sermon concerned Paul's sermon to his favorite church. The minister recalled that Paul scolded
all churches except that at Philippi,
so it would be safe to call it his favorite church. For this reason, he said, his prayer for the church
should contain the choicest things

Discussion of Advertising

Now that most persons understand and appreciate the many advantages of being informed of what goes on in the community in which they live, as well as throughout the world in general, advertising,
especially newspaper advertising, is being discussed in our homes.

A great many more men
than any of us would guess
take a lively interest in all of the purchases for the home
once left almost entirely to the women or servants.

And likewise many wives,
daughters and sons discuss in the family circle everything purchased by every member of the family even unto the clothes worn by his Royal Highness, the Head of the family.

Taking the newspaper home
and "getting the best out of it"
is an occupation that is growing in popular favor as never before. To many, in fact, the most interesting part of the news is the news of advertising.

Certainly it is among the most profitable.

THE CHOICE OF INDIANA POSTS

O. A. Somers Boomed for Head of G. A. R.

SYSTEMATIC CAMPAIGN IS ON

Indiana Department of Grand Army of the Republic is Preparing to Go in Force to the National Encampment at Chattanooga For the Purpose of Pressing the Candidacy of Past Department Commander for High Post.

Indianapolis, July 28.—A large number of soldiers of Indiana will attend the grand encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic to be held at Chattanooga, Tenn., between Sept. 15 and 20, to urge the election of Orlando A. Somers of Kokomo as commander in chief. Mr. Somers is a past commander of the department of Indiana.

The Indiana department, with a membership of more than 13,000, has had only one commander in chief during the thirty-nine years' existence of the national organization, and this is being strongly urged as a reason for Mr. Somers's election. Letters in the interest of Mr. Somers's candidacy are being sent to the 332 posts in Indiana and to the several hundred delegates of the various states to the national encampment. The letters, which also bear a likeness of the Indiana candidate, are signed by Daniel W. Comstock of Richmond, department commander, and Colonel J. R. Fesler of Indianapolis, assistant adjutant general.

An order telling of the plans for the trip to Chattanooga is also being sent to the Indiana posts. Thirty-six Indiana organizations, regiments and battalions participated in the engagements fought near Chattanooga, and for this reason it is expected that the attendance of Indiana soldiers at the national encampment will be unusually large. This will be the first time that the national G. A. R. encampment has been held so far south. Most of the Indiana soldiers who attend the encampment will make side trips to the several battlefields surrounding Chattanooga. The fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Chickamauga will be observed Sept. 20.

METHODIST MEN TO MEET

Thousands of Them Will Gather in Indianapolis in October.

Indianapolis, July 28.—The Rev. Ralph Welles Keeler, chairman of the publicity committee of the national convention of Methodist men, to be held in Indianapolis Oct. 28-31, who has been in Indianapolis to prepare for the convention, says it will be the largest religious meeting ever held in this country.

The principal meetings will be held in Tomlinson hall, and a large force will arrive in Indianapolis next month to establish convention offices at the Y. M. C. A.

The Rev. Mr. Keeler said that the convention will bring to Indianapolis 3,000 delegates, 1,500 ministers and bishops, 500 district superintendents and secretaries of boards and 1,000 pastors. Charles W. Fairbanks has been chosen to act as chairman of the meetings.

Fletcher Deaton Convicted.
Winchester, Ky., July 28.—Fletcher Deaton, alleged conspirator in a plot that led to the murder of former Sheriff Ed Callahan of Breathitt county, was found guilty by a Madison county jury and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Deaton is the second of eighteen defendants to be convicted. Andrew Johnson having been given a life sentence a few days before.

Pushed Boy Under Train.
Hammond, Ind., July 28.—Milan Skodack, nine years old, whose leg was crushed after he had been pushed under a Lake Shore train by two boys, is dead in a hospital here. Before he died the boy told of the attack, but did not know his assailants, who had escaped before young Skodack was found by trainmen.

Wounded Guardsman Dead.
Indianapolis, July 28.—Walter Dowell, a private in the Indiana national guard, who was shot by Sergeant Edwin Ball Wednesday night when he attempted to escape from the officer, died Sunday morning.

Death of Henry Pettit.
Wabash, Ind., July 28.—Henry Corbin Pettit, former member of the legislature, speaker of the Indiana house and later United States marshal, is dead at his home here.

Farmer Victim of Horse's Kick.
Columbus, Ind., July 28.—When John Guffy, a wealthy farmer near here, was kicked by one of his horses both of his arms and two of his ribs were broken.

Another Victim of the Ohio.
Lawrenceburg, Ind., July 28.—The body of a girl, apparently about eighteen years old, was found in the Ohio river. There was nothing by which the body could be identified.

Former Senator J. W. Bailey has decided to make the race for governor of Texas next year.

TAKING THE REVOLT OUT OF PRISONERS

Bread and Water Diet Having a Quieting Effect.

Ossining, N. Y., July 28.—When Warden Clancy lets out of their cells the 250 men who have been imprisoned for five days and nights, what will happen, is the question everybody in Ossining is putting today. A gill of water and six slices of bread, representing three meals a day, is their fare, and it is figured that when they are finally released the spirit of revolt will be all gone out of them.

Popular opinion in Ossining credits an official in the prison, an enemy of Governor Sulzer and, secretly, of Warden Clancy, with being the director of the convicts' revolt. This man is a friend of ex-Warden Kennedy, who was indicted and removed. However this may be, the convicts themselves are terribly in earnest in their revolt. They say they are putting up their fight against a jail that is making them worse men. As one of the fellows freed recently said: "If the people of the whole state only could see what they are doing to the poor guys in there they would understand the trouble."

Two sticks of dynamite were found in the prison last night. The dynamite was found in a cell occupied by two men, one of whom became alarmed for his safety and spoke to a keeper, who threw the stuff into the river.

Anti-German Feeling Crops Out.
Christiania, July 28.—The anti-German Morgenblad has been making a number of violent attacks on Mr. Schedemann, who is to be the new minister from the United States to this country. It calls him a "German tailor whose only qualification is that he has been treasurer of the Democratic party in Wisconsin," and describes his selection as a direct insult to Norway.

UNCLE SAM NOW MEANS BUSINESS

Vigorous Representations Made to Mexico.

SHOOTING OF U. S. OFFICIAL

When Mexican Federal Soldiers at Juarez Fired on and Seriously Wounded Charles Dixon, U. S. Immigration Inspector at El Paso, They Got Their Government in a Position Requiring More Than an Apology.

Washington, July 28.—If any additional evidence were needed to demonstrate that the Mexican situation is sadly in need of a remedy, the administration has it now in the shooting of Charles Dixon, United States immigration inspector, by federal soldiers at Juarez. The Dixon shooting was made the occasion of the most vigorous representations yet ordered by the department of state. Aside from the gravity of the incident in itself, the wantonness and reckless defiance of the United States which inspired the occurrence has proved to Washington that the United States, its authority and its representatives are being regarded with contempt in Mexico.

Dixon was in Juarez on official business, investigating a white slave charge, when he was arrested by a band of federals, who started marching him away from the city in the direction of the foothills where many executions have occurred. Dixon started to run, and after getting half a block away was fired on and hit in the back. Dixon's father lives in Wharton, Tex.

Arthur Walker, a negro, was at the bottom of the arrests. He was being investigated by United States immigration men, and when he saw Dixon in Juarez he told a number of Mexican soldiers that Dixon was there with a bottle of chloroform to chloroform him and forcibly take him to El Paso. He is said also to have bought drinks for the soldiers and then he made a criminal complaint with the Juarez authorities against Dixon. The arrest of the immigration man by the Mexican troops followed. Just why they started marching Dixon toward the outskirts of the town is not understood unless the Ley Fuga trick was planned and they wished the prisoner to do just what he did, run and get shot. The soldiers who made the arrest and the negro who caused the arrest have been jailed in Juarez, according to the report to the immigration officials.

Representations were made both to the military authorities at Juarez, Mexico, opposite El Paso, Tex., and to the responsible authorities of the Huerta government in Mexico City. Through Consul Edwards at Juarez and Charge d'Affaires Nelson O'Shaughnessy at the American embassy in Mexico City, peremptory demands were made for speedy reparation and redress for the offense.

Consul Edwards has demanded the arrest and confinement of all the federal officers and soldiers concerned in the shooting of Dixon. The consul also has been busy gathering names of witnesses to the shooting and seeing that these witnesses were not spirited away. He also demanded that permission be granted for the removal of Dixon to an El Paso hospital, which has been granted.

Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy has been instructed by Secretary Bryan to call at once on the minister of war in Mexico City and demand that all concerned in the shooting of Dixon be imprisoned at once. He was also directed to demand that the trial of the offenders proceed forthwith. He informed the minister of war of what the American consul at Juarez was doing in the case and insisted that every facility be extended to him to expedite the apprehension and proper punishment of all concerned. It is confidently expected that the Huerta government will not be slow to express its extreme regret at the occurrence and to expedite the punishment of the guilty parties.

Though the Dixon shooting would have been an affair of serious consequence at any time, it is felt that the ultimate effect of the situation is likely to be increased, coming as it does at the most critical moment in Mexican relations in the last three years.

Washington feels that it is on the eve of a momentous decision upon the part of the administration in regard to Mexico. What that decision will be nobody seems to know, but that it will be a turning point in the situation no one doubts. Out of the tension of the last few days has come unanimity in regard to at least one fact in the Mexican trouble, and that is that something must be done and done at once. Even Secretary of State Bryan, who has been reluctant to admit the gravity of the Mexican situation, now holds this view.

REASONS GIVEN FOR "CANNING" MULHALL

Manufacturers Tell Why They Let the Colonel Out.

Washington, July 28.—The reason why Martin M. Mulhall was relieved from duty by the National Association of Manufacturers has been made public by the officials of that organization, who produced two letters, one from J. P. Bird, general manager of the organization, to his superior officer, John Kirby, jr., then president, and the other from Mr. Bird to the colonel himself, in which the general manager announced he had determined to thwart the colonel's derelictions at headquarters. The letters disclose that the occasion for Colonel Mulhall's dismissal was the fact that during the Maine 1911 state campaign he interested himself in the campaign as the paid agent of the United Brewers' association while still in the employ of the N. A. M., and that he represented to prominent Maine politicians that he was acting on behalf of the latter organization, concealing his true employment. Further, in the opinion of the N. A. M. officials, Colonel Mulhall's actual activities constituted a further breach of good faith in that he was engaged thus in campaigning for the "wet" interests when on vacations, under pay, from his real employment.

SUN'S HEAT TO BE OUR BAROMETER

Weather Forecasts Will Be Possible Months Ahead.

TESTS WILL TAKE YEARS.

Professor Frost, Director of Yerkes Observatory, Predicts That Future Scientists Will Be Able to Tell the Temperature Six Months in Advance—Observe Sun Spots.

Great interest is manifested among scientists as the result of a published statement of Professor Edwin B. Frost, director of the Yerkes observatory, to the effect that it has been determined that the "solar constant" is in fact a variable quantity and that the effect of the change is not appreciable on earth until as long as six months after the change.

For this reason Professor Frost is of the opinion that eventually it may be possible to determine general weather conditions that far ahead—in other words, that careful observations of solar conditions will indicate what conditions may prevail on the earth later.

In addition to the observations made by Professor Frost similar observations have been made by Professor H. H. Kimball for the government at the station on Mount Weather.

In his statement Professor Frost declares that careful observations indicate that the late Professor S. P. Langley placed his estimate for the amount of heat absorption by the earth at too high a figure.

Professor Langley's Devices.

Professor Frost in his statement comments on the ingenious devices invented by Professor Langley, by which he measured the sun's heat, and on the discoveries of C. G. Abbott and F. E. Fowle, who for the past ten years have been conducting their investigations at sea level and at Mount Whitney (14,500 feet) and Mount Wilson (6,000 feet), in southern California. He goes on to say:

"The most striking result of these investigations is the discovery by Abbott and Fowle that the 'solar constant' is not a constant, but a variable—in other words, that our sun is a variable star, like hundreds and thousands of others in the sky.

"It was nearly ten years ago that these investigators found evidence that the radiation of the sun was not steady from day to day, and ten years of work has been devoted to determining whether these apparent variations were really in the sun or due to errors of observation or to fluctuation in the absorption by the earth's atmosphere. They now feel justified in stating that these fluctuations are real and are in the sun itself, amounting to 5 per cent or more in a period of a week or ten days.

"Observations for sun spots have now been made long enough so that we know that they are more numerous every eleven years, slowly declining from a maximum number to a minimum number about seven years later and then rising again to a maximum about four years after the minimum.

Importance of the Discovery.

"The importance of this discovery of the variation in the sun's heat is probably obvious to the reader. The inhabitants of the earth are entirely dependent for their existence upon the results of agricultural work, and nothing is more certain than that the radiation from the sun lies at the basis of the principal weather elements in the earth's atmosphere.

"It should not be inferred that a sudden startling change in the sun's radiation produces an immediate effect in the terrestrial temperatures. The earth's atmosphere takes up these changes and gradually communicates them to the earth's surface. How soon and to what degree remain to be investigated.

"Continuous study, extended perhaps over many years, will be required to determine if these changes in radiation can be predicted in advance and if the laws can be determined which govern them. It is evidently a most practical problem, touching the interests of every inhabitant of the earth."

TRAMPS HAVE NERVE.

When Offered Work on Farm They Indulge in Merry Persiflage.

Within the past fortnight Kansas officials have had calls from twenty towns asking what to do with a surplus of tramps. At Clay Center, Kan., twenty "sons of rest" were loafing in the park. When a farmer offered them $3 a day to work in the harvest they demanded $3.50. When that figure was met they demanded $4. The spokesman for the tramps asked the farmer:

"Is your land rolling or broken?"

"Rolling," said the farmer.

"Well, roll it in here, and we'll harvest it."

Bees Kill Chickens.

Two hundred pullets belonging to W. F. Weems, a poultry raiser, near Porterville, Cal., were stung to death by a swarm of bees. # TRAINED PARROT FOUND THAT BEATS SCARECROW.

Polly Cries "Get Out, Get Out!" and Crows Flee.

Aaron Doughty, a farmer of Harpswell Center, lower Casco bay, in Maine, believes he has solved the problem of keeping the crows out of his cornfields. The corn that grows in that vicinity attains unusual size and sweetness. The farmers get big prices for their product and are obliged to wage continual warfare against the crows. The latter are unusually bold this year and seem to have little fear of dead members of their kind swung from bean poles or from other scarecrows of time honored type.

Driven to desperate measures, Mr. Doughty bought a parrot and for a month devoted himself to teaching the bird to chase crows away from his cornfields. Every time he saw a crow he would start running toward it, waving his arms and loudly shouting "Get out, get out!"

Poll was an interested observer and in no time was screeching, "Get out, get out!"

When the bird had learned that the farm was his home Mr. Doughty experimented in giving Poll his liberty when he chased crows. As he hoped, the imitative parrot flew after him, raucously crying its warning. It went even further.

Mr. Doughty had not expected the bird would do anything but fly toward the field, thus frightening the crows away with his mysterious human sounding words. But Poll entered into the spirit of the thing in a way that exceeded all expectations. He not only flew to the cornfield, but kept right on after the retreating crows, chasing them sometimes a quarter of a mile before returning to the cage. Poll developed a particular hatred for the crow family.

One of Poll's favorite tricks is to walk slowly through the grass until nearly in the midst of a flock. Poll certainly gives the crows a shock when he jumps into the air after them, his brilliant plumage shining in the sun, shrilly shrieking "Get out, get out!"

The crows are deserting Mr. Doughty's fields for those of other farmers where the worst they have to contend with is some effigy of a tramp they know by instinct to be harmless or, in rare instances, a barefooted country boy with a rusty shotgun.

Nine farmers from near and far are flocking to the Doughty farm to watch Poll do his stunt.

U. S. TO ISSUE A MAGAZINE.

It will be edited by three representatives from the department and two from colleges and stations.

Publication of farmers' bulletins will be continued by the department, but in many instances the pamphlets will deal with problems affecting a particular section of the country. Other publications of broad general interest will be spread over the whole country.

These will continue through the three succeeding days.

FOX RANCHES ON ALASKAN ISLANDS

Government Will Lease Lands to Rear Animals.

GOOD PRICES FOR FURS.

Only American Citizens May Take Advantage of Opportunity, According to Requirements—Leases to Be For Five Years, With Annual Fee of Not Less Than $200.

Announcement has been made by the secretary of commerce of his intention to lease twelve islands on the coast of Alaska to persons who wish to engage in the business of rearing foxes. The islands will be leased for a period of five years to the highest responsible bidders.

Recently the rearing of foxes for their furs has attracted a great deal of attention. Public interest has been aroused by the remarkable results achieved in this industry in the eastern part of Canada. The prices reported to have been paid for silver foxes, black foxes and other valuable varieties are almost fabulous. The demand for foxes by breeders has been so greatly in excess of the supply that live foxes of the desired varieties bring many times the amount which could be secured for their pelts.

While the breeding of foxes in Alaska has attracted but little public attention, the business has been going on for a number of years, and the requests made to the department of commerce for permits to take wild stock for the purpose of domestication have been steadily increasing. On the Pribilof islands the practice of taking the arctic blue fox has been pursued for many years. In 1912 the sale in London of the 391 blue and white fox skins taken on those islands during the winter of 1910-11 netted the United States government $15,096.58. The London sale in 1913 of the 413 skins taken in the winter of 1911-12 netted the government $20,505.17. At this sale one lot of twenty-eight skins was sold for $3,675, or more than $131 per skin. It is thus seen that the blue foxes in the government herds on the Pribilof islands produce exceptionally fine pelts and are therefore very desirable breeding stock. The secretary of commerce will undertake to furnish, under competitive bids, live blue foxes from the Pribilof islands to those who desire choice breeding stock.

Improve by Breeding.

There is little doubt that the various species and varieties of foxes can be improved by the application of methods of animal breeding used by up to date breeders of live stock.

The commissioner of fisheries in his annual report to the secretary of commerce and labor for the fiscal year 1912 in speaking of the special efforts being made to improve the stock of foxes on the Pribilof islands and the methods of handling the herds states:

"The results of experiments in feeding and selective breeding that are now in progress give reason to believe that the output can be greatly increased and the quality of the fur enhanced."

According to our present knowledge there are two principal groups of foxes native to Alaska that have been handled with success on fox farms. One of these is the species known as the arctic blue fox, which is indigenous to the northern portions of Alaska. It is believed that it was not found on the Pribilof islands at the time of their discovery in 1787, but that it was taken to those islands subsequently. It is also reared on fox ranches on various islands on the coast of Alaska. Some individuals of this species have nearly white fur and are known as white foxes. The fur of a white fox is much less valuable than that from the blue members of the species. For this reason it is good business to eliminate from a herd of blue foxes all individuals which show a tendency toward the white fox variety.

Red Foxes and Others.

The other is a group of species known collectively as red foxes, the various species being found distributed throughout the northern portions of the United States and in Canada and Alaska. Silver gray foxes, cross foxes and black foxes are considered as individual variations of the red fox. Experiments which have been made indicate, however, that pure strains of these varieties may be obtained by selective breeding.

The islands which it is proposed to lease are those which had been leased by the secretary of the treasury for fox propagation purposes prior to May 14, 1898. They are Chirikof island, Long island, Marmot island, Little Konijui island, Simeonof island, Little Naked island, Carlson island, Middleton island, Pearl island, Elizabeth island, Agihyuk island and Chowiet island.

Full information regarding the conditions with which one must comply in order to secure a lease of one of these islands can be obtained by addressing the secretary of commerce, Washington.

The more important requirements that leases will be given only to American citizens or companies or corporations organized under the laws of a state or territory, that the period of the lease will be five years with an annual fee of not less than $200 and that detailed reports be submitted annually to the secretary of commerce.

CHINCH BUGS GO AT $2 A BUSHEL

Odd Bounty Offered Brings a Speedy Response.

BUSINESS MEN BUY THEM.

One Farmer of Macoupin County, Ill., Writes, Asking Whether Future Shipments Shall Be Made by Him in Boxes, Sacks or Barrels—Pests Are Wheat Fed and Pedigreed.

Farmers in Macoupin county, Ill., have been making a profit out of a pest by taking advantage of one of the strangest "bounty" offers ever made.

There have at different times been bounties for wolves' heads, fox tails, minks, prairie dogs, crows, sparrows, grasshoppers and rattlesnakes. But newer and stranger than any of these is the chinch bug bounty.

The chinch-bug, as every agriculturist knows, is a little insect that swoops down on growing wheat and corn fields and destroys crops.

Macoupin county business men organized a committee which offered $2 a bushel for all chinch bugs sent in by farmers to the committee headquarters at Carlinville.

Colonel Ike Snedeker of Jerseyville, who with his brother, Dr. Frank S. Snedeker, owns a big farm at Plainview, Ill., was the first to claim the bounty.

Strikes Him Humorously.

The Snedeker brothers' first consignment of chinch bugs was accompanied by the following letter to R. E. Chiles, chairman of the committee:

"Yourself and committee of progressive citizens are to be congratulated in your effort to make war on the chinch bug. Your offer to pay $2 a bushel is very liberal. We accept it and have begun shipments.

"Not knowing just what you might call a bushel, we thought that thirty-two full quarts might be satisfactory, and started to gather the bugs out of ten holes on one side of twenty acres, where the bugs were coming out of the wheat. We soon had the thirty-two quarts, and twenty-three quarts additional, which we also put in for good measure. We thought we would clean out the ten holes while at it. This is the middy catch, and the bugs do not run as fast then as later in the evening, say about 5 or 6 o'clock.

"We tried not to bruise any—just dipped them up and lowered them into a sack. We have been burning them out with a blow torch, but your startling offer has turned us to shame, and we blush to look a bug in the face when we think how very cruel we have been to his many close relatives. We want you pleased with this first shipment.

Guarantees the Bugs.

"These especial bugs are not natives with us. Last year all on our place were killed. The great-great-grandparents of these fellows flew in on us from the farms of some of the fellows who have been buying our last year's corn crop. However, they are wheat fed and well pedigreed, very active and well developed and capable of tackling the finest corn crop that ever grew out of the ground. The sample includes all sizes, colors and shapes, some of the best line tacklers we ever saw, and we know a good one

Useful Cements.

One of the simplest hard cements is the well known mixture of litharge and glycerin made to a stiff paste. It sets hard as a rock and is oil proof. A solution of water glass mixed with powdered calcium carbonate serves the same purpose.

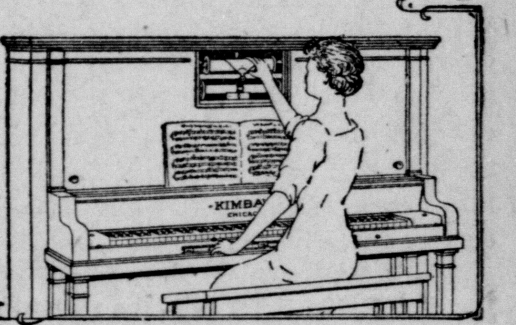

A mixture of boiled linseed oil and fire clay rests acid better than most cements, though sulphur melted with glass powder is also ranked as very resistant to chemicals in general.

A good stone cement is made by mixing two parts of magnesium oxide, one part of magnesium chloride, powdered stone to suit as a filler and water to make a stiff paste. Basic magnesium chloride is formed.—Scientific American.

Vacation Time.

The value of vacations or periods of rest, recreation and change is more widely recognized each year. The city worker has been the first to appreciate the value of his annual vacation and is almost irresistibly impelled to leave the city during the summer. Generally he seeks the quietest, most secluded place to be found and when he returns to his labors he feels refreshed and invigorated, with a brighter outlook on life and ready for greater achievement.

The rural resident, having been slow to adopt the policy of his urban cousin, has not profited to the extent that he should by visiting other localities, viewing new scenes and making new acquaintances and in this way acquiring newer and broader views of life and of the world.

Of all men, he who lives the isolated life of the farm most needs an annual vacation. The humdrum existence, and lack of stimulating excitement of farm life might well be varied by a visit of a few weeks to the noisy, bustling city. The need of scientific knowledge as applied to agriculture may be met by short term courses in agricultural colleges, by attendance at farmers' institutes and visits to experiment stations.

Most of all, however, the annual vacation should afford change of scene, variety of employment and should broaden the horizon.

Let us take a day or a week off now and then to get acquainted with the rest of the world. All work and no play makes Jack not only a dull boy but a dull man, too. Any one or all of us will profit by visiting other communities and other scenes, relaxing from the continual and monotonous grind of our work and thus opening our minds to receive new ideas and impressions. Now is vacation time. Of course it's busy time, too, but let's change off with one another and take turn about in getting a week at the lake, in the city or at the river, fishing, bathing and boating. Don't say you can't afford it; you in fact can't afford not to go.

Unfit Office Workers.

A representative of a publishing company tells about testing applicants for a typewriter's position. He examined 75 girls to find one who was competent. Perhaps other employers are not so severe, yet most office managers find difficulty in hiring good help.

Are the schools mushy? Or are the young people stupid?

High school teachers in many places complain bitterly of unprepared pupils. While they are shoved ahead into algebra, Latin, or physics, what they need is often a stiff review in arithmetic and penmanship.

Office workers are not good for much unless they acquire accuracy and thoroughness. But in the happy days of school life, there are so many dances that must be attended that it comes pretty hard to dig that tough old interest example out to the last partial payment. The anti-climax of all this fun comes when the young folks go up against the man who hires the help.

Late Summer Advertising.

Clearance sales of dry goods, clothing and other necessities are a regular feature of trade. Most merchants prefer to make heavy sacrifices rather than carry goods over a year.

At this time the advertising columns of this newspaper are a trade report of the exceptional conditions that make these clearance sales necessary. By careful study of the advertising columns in late July and August, you can always find how to make a big dent in the cost of living.

The majority of the people understand this well enough. Before reading what Congress is doing to the tariff, they turn to see what their favorite merchant is doing to his stock. No matter how fine type he puts his appeal into, it affects their interests so intimately that his message receives careful thought.

If a merchant fails to give the public any news from his store at these times, it is regarded as a case of "Nothing doing." It gives the impression that he is carrying stock over another season.

Indiana's Part.

It would appear that Indiana had a good deal to do with the creation of a tariff commission, says the Muncie Press.

There was Mr. Reisenberg of Indianapolis, a right hand man of Senator Beveridge, who called the conference of manufacturers at Indianapolis in 1909 looking to the creation of such a body, there was Senator Beveridge, who appeared before the conference and made a speech in behalf of what it was undertaking to do, there was Mr. Parry, active in the movement, whom Senator Beveridge credited with creating him politically, and there was Mr. Watson, who took charge of the legislative battle for the creation of the commission and wrote the paragraph in the law which provided for it.

Senator Beveridge has hitherto claimed the credit for the tariff commission movement. It seems that there is glory enough to go round.

Mr. Bryan says his farm is only an expense to him. Many others also have found that the telephone is not a good implement to raise corn with.

Judging by the lobby investigation, the voters of Maine can be greatly enlightened as to their duty by the judicious use of a little whiskey.

When you go on a vacation, a freshly pressed suit and a new straw hat goes a long way in making strangers believe you are a Personage of Importance.

QUESTION IN LAW CLEARED

Under New Statute When Note Falls Due, it is Same as Check on a Bank.

IT MUST BE PAID AS SUCH

Local Banks Receive Notice of Change From Indianapolis Clearing House.

Many depositors in Rushville and Rush county banks have been surprised lately to learn, that a note which was due had been paid by the bank and charged to their account. Formerly when a note was presented, it was not imperative that the bank pay it.

Local bankers have received the following explanatory notice from the Indianapolis Clearing House association:

"At its last session, the Indiana legislature enacted what is known as the Negotiable Instruments Law which is a codification of the law relating to checks, drafts and notes. This act makes some important changes in the law as it previously existed in Indiana. Your especial attention is called to one such change effected by Article VI, Section 87, which follows:

"When the instrument (promissory note or acceptance) is made payable at a bank, it is equivalent to an order to the bank to pay the same for the account of the principal debtor thereon."

The attorney-general gives it as his opinion, as have other lawyers who have been consulted, that under this law, when a note or acceptance is made payable at a bank and the bank has sufficient funds of the maker or acceptor on deposit, it must pay the obligation on demand at maturity unless it has specific instructions from the maker or acceptor to withhold payment. Thus, in its legal effect, a note or acceptance payable at bank becomes at maturity practically a check on the bank where it is payable, and in the absence of positive instructions to the contrary (as in the case of a check on which payment has been stopped) the bank must pay it on proper demand if the maker or acceptor has funds on deposit sufficient for the purpose.

This law became effective on its promulgation April 30, 1913, and therefore controls all notes or acceptances executed on that or a subsequent date.

The question arose over the right of the bank to pay all of the money on deposit to the credit of the maker of the note where the sum on deposit does not aggregate enough to take up the entire note and bankers were anxious to know if the note under such circumstances was to be held until such a time as the deposit is sufficient to cover the face of the note and interest thereon.

The new negotiable instrument law is looked on as a market advance in Indiana banking. In the past several concerns have evaded the payment of notes by not making them payable at a bank and then going into the hands of a receiver and closing their places of business leaving the place designated for payment of the note closed when the note became due. Under the new law a note is good no matter where it is payable.

TO DO AWAY WITH DELIVERY

High Cost of Living Hits Butchers of City.

The meat markets of the city announced that after Saturday they will discontinue the delivery of meat to their patrons. All the markets of the city have entered into the agreement and the free delivery will be a thing of the past after next Saturday. The high cost of living is given as the reason for the action of the butchers. They claim that the high cost of beef and pork makes it necessary to discontinue the delivery system and hereafter the patrons will have to call for their meat.

FARMER KILLED IN A RUNAWAY

Obed M. Hall, Age Seventy, Thrown From Hay Wagon in Field Near Straughn.

THE FUNERAL IS HELD TODAY

The funeral of Obed H. Hall, age seventy years, who was killed instantly in an accident in a hay field on the farm of his brother, Luther Hall, near Straughn Friday evening, was held today.

Mr. Hall had gone to his brother's farm to assist getting in the hay crop and he had driven back into the field for the last load. He was standing on a partially loaded wagon when a team owned by Luther Hall, which was hitched to a hay rake, became scared at something and dashed madly across the field. In their flight they brushed past the hay wagon and scared Mr. Hall's team, which darted widely after the fleeing team. Mr. Hall was unprepared for the dash and the horses had gripped the bits in their teeth before the unfortunate man could pull in on the lines.

Mr. Hall's Horse proved the fleetest of the two teams and overtook the first span just before rushing through the gate. Mr. Hall was seen to be clinging to the lines in an effort to stop the animals as they dashed out of sight over a hill. It is unknown whether he was thrown off the wagon or fell from it, but he fell directly in the path of the oncoming animals and one of the horses stepped on his head. The entire left side of his head was crushed and his skull was fractured in several places, killing him instantly.

CHAPTER III.

Dunham hurried her off amid the good-bys of the company, and in a moment more they were shut into the semi-darkness of the four-wheeler and whirled from the too hospitable door.

As soon as the door was shut, the girl began to tremble.

"Oh, we ought not to have done that!" she exclaimed with a shiver of recollection. "They were so very kind. It was dreadful to impose upon them. But—you were not to blame. It was my fault. It was very kind of you."

"We did not impose upon them!" he exclaimed peremptorily. "You are my friend, and that was all that we claimed. For the rest, you have certainly made good. Your wonderful music! How I wish I might hear more of it some time!"

The carriage paused to let a trolley pass, and a strong arc-light beat in upon the two. A passing stranger peered curiously at them, and the girl shrank back in fear. It was momentary, but the minds of the two were brought back to the immediate necessities of the occasion.

"Now, what may I do for you?" asked Dunham in a quiet, business-like tone, as if it were his privilege and right to do all that was to be done. "Have you thought where you would like to go?"

"I have not been able to do much thinking. It required all my wits to act with the present. But I know that I must not be any further trouble to you. You have done more already than anyone could expect. If you can have the carriage stop in some quiet, out-of-the-way street where I shall not be noticed, I will get out and relieve you. If I hadn't been so frightened at first, I should have had more sense than to burden you this way. I hope some day I shall be able to repay your kindness, though I fear it is too great ever to repay."

"Please don't talk in that way," said he protesting. "It has been a pleasure to do the little that I have done, and you have more than repaid it by the delight you have given me and my friends. I could not think of leaving you until you are out of your trouble, and if you will only give me a little hint of how to help, I will do my utmost for you. Are you quite sure you were followed? Don't you think you could trust me enough to tell me a little more about the matter?"

She shuddered visibly.

"Forgive me," he murmured. "I see it distresses you. Of course it is unpleasant to confide in an utter stranger. I will not ask you to tell me. I will try to think for you. Suppose we go to the station and get you a ticket to somewhere. Have you any preference? You can trust me not to tell anyone where you have gone, can you not?" There was a kind rebuke in his tone, and her eyes, as she lifted them to his face, were full of tears.

"Oh, I do trust you!" she cried, distressed. "You must not think that, but—you do not understand."

Then she added suddenly: "But I cannot buy a ticket. I have no money with me, and I—"

"Don't think of that for an instant. I will gladly supply your need. A little loan should not distress you."

"But I do not know when I shall be able to repay it," she faltered, "unless—she hastily drew off her glove and slipped a glittering ring from her finger—"unless you will let this pay for it. I do not like to trouble you so, but the stone is worth a good deal."

"Indeed," he protested, "I couldn't think of taking your ring. Let me do this. It is such a small thing. I shall never miss it. Let it rest until you are out of your trouble, at least."

"Please!" she insisted, holding out the ring. "I shall get right out of this carriage unless you do."

"But perhaps some one gave you the ring, and you are attached to it."

"My father," she answered briefly, "and he would want me to use it this way." She pressed the ring into his hand almost impatiently.

"I will keep it until you want it again," he said kindly.

"You need not do that, for I shall not claim it," she declared. "You are at liberty to sell it. I know it is worth a good deal."

"I shall certainly keep it until I am sure you do not want it yourself," he repeated. "Now let us talk about this journey of yours. We are almost at the station. Have you any preference as to where you go? Have you friends to whom you could go?"

She shook her head.

"There are trains to New York every hour almost."

"Oh, no!" she gasped in a frightened tone.

And to Washington often."

"I should rather not go to Washington," she breathed again.

"Pittsburgh, Chicago?" he hazarded, "Chicago will do," she asserted with relief. Then the carriage stopped before the great station, ablaze with light and throbbing with life.

He hurried her through the station and up to the ladies' waiting room, where he found a quiet corner and a large rocking-chair, in which he placed her so that she might look out of the great window upon the panorama of the evening street, and yet be thoroughly screened from all intruding glances by the big leather and brass screen of the "ladies' bootblack."

He was gone fifteen minutes, during which the girl sat quietly in her chair, yet alert, every nerve strained. At any moment the mass of faces she was watching might reveal one whom she dreaded to see, or a detective might place his hand upon her shoulder with a quiet "Come with me."

When Dunham came back, the nervous start she gave showed him how tense and anxious had been her mind. He studied her lovely face under the great hat, and noted the dark shadows beneath her eyes. He felt that he must do something to relieve her. It was unbearable to him that this young girl should be adrift, friendless, and apparently a victim to some terrible fear.

Drawing up a chair beside her, he began talking about her ticket.

"You must remember I was utterly at your mercy," she smiled sadly. "I simply had to let you help me."

"I should be glad to pay double for the pleasure you have given me in allowing me to help you," he said.

Just at that moment a boy in a blue uniform planted a sole-leather suitcase at his feet, and exclaimed: "Here you are, Mr. Dunham. Had a fierce time findin' you. Thought you said you would be by the elevator door."

"So I did," confessed the young man. "I didn't think you had time to get down yet. Well, you found me anyhow, Harkness."

The boy took the silver given him, touched his hat, and sauntered off.

"You see," explained Dunham, "it wasn't exactly the thing for you to be traveling without a bit of baggage. I thought it might help them to trace you if you really were being followed. So I took the liberty of phoning over to the clubhouse and telling the boy to bring down the suitcase that I left there yesterday. I don't exactly know what's in it. I had the man pack it and send it down to me, thinking I might stay all night at the club. Then I went home, after all, and forgot to take it along. It probably hasn't anything very appropriate for a lady's costume, but there may be a hair-brush and some soap and handkerchiefs. And, anyhow, if you'll accept it, it'll be something for you to hitch on to. One feels a little lost even for one night without a rag one can call one's own except a Pullman towel. I thought it might give you the appearance of a regular traveler, you know, and not a runaway."

He tried to make her laugh about it, but her face was deeply serious as she looked up at him.

"I think this is the kindest and most thoughtful thing you have done yet," she said. "I don't see how I can ever, ever thank you!"

"Don't try," he returned gaily. "There's your train being called. We'd better go right out and make you comfortable. You are beginning to be very tired."

She did not deny it, but rose to follow him, scanning the waiting room with one quick, frightened look. An obsequious porter at the gate seized the suitcase and led them in state to the Pullman.

The girl found herself established in the little drawing room compartment, and her eyes gave him thanks again. She knew the seclusion and the opportunity to lock the compartment door would give her relief from the constant fear that an unwelcome face might at any moment appear beside her.

"The conductor on this train is an old acquaintance of mine," he explained as that official came through the car. "I have taken this trip with him a number of times. Just sit down a minute. I am going to ask him to look out for you and see that no one annoys you."

The burly official looked grimly over his glasses at the sweet face under the big black hat, while Tryon Dunham explained: "She's a friend of mine. I

nope you'll be good to her." In answer, he nodded grim assent with a smileless alacrity which was nevertheless satisfactory and comforting. Then the young man walked through the train to interview the porter and the newsboy, and in every way to arrange for a pleasant journey for one who three hours before had been unknown to him.

When he returned to her he found the shades closely drawn and the girl sitting in the sheltered corner of the section, where she could not be seen from the aisle, but where she could watch in the mirror the approach of anyone. She welcomed him with a smile, but instantly urged him to leave the train, lest he be carried away.

He laughed at her fears, and told her there was plenty of time. Even after the train had given its preliminary shudder, he lingered to tell her that she must be sure to let him know by telegraph if she needed any further help; and at last swung himself from the platform after the train was in full motion.

Immediately he remembered that he had not given her any money. How could he have forgotten? And there was the North side station yet to be passed before she would be out of danger. The last car was almost past when he made a daring dash and flung himself headlong upon the platform, to the horror of several trainmen who stood on the adjoining tracks.

He found the girl sitting where he had left her, only she had flung up the shade of the window next her, and was gazing with wide, frightened eyes into the fast flying darkness. He touched her gently on the shoulder, and she turned with a cry.

"Oh, I thought you had fallen under the train!" she said in an awed voice. "It was going so fast! But you did not get off, after all, did you? Now, what can you do? It is too bad, and all on my account."

"Yes, I got off," he said doggedly, sitting down opposite her and pulling his tie straight. "I got off, but it wasn't altogether satisfactory, and so I got on again. There wasn't much time for getting on gracefully, but you'll have to excuse it. The fact is, I couldn't bear to leave you alone just yet. I couldn't rest until I knew you had passed the North side station. Besides, I had forgotten to give you any money."

"Oh, but you mustn't!" she protested, her eyes eloquent with feeling.

"Please don't say that," he went on eagerly. "I can get off later and take the down train, you know. Really, the fact is, I couldn't let you go right out of existence this way without knowing about you."

The moments fairly flew. They passed the North side station, and were nearing the flag station. After that there would be no more stops until past midnight. The young man knew he must get off.

"I cannot help feeling that I ought to take care of you," he said.

"But I cannot permit it," she said firmly, lifting her trustful eyes to smile at him.

"Will you promise to let me know if you need anything?"

"No, I'm afraid I cannot promise even that," she answered, "because, while you have been a true friend to me, the immediate and awful necessity is, I hope, past."

"You will at least take this," he said, drawing from his pocket an inconspicuous purse of beautiful leather, and putting into it all the money his pockets contained. "I saw you had no pocketbook," he went on, "and I ventured to get this one in the drug store below the station. Will you accept it from me? I have your ring, you know, and when you take the ring back you may, if you wish, return the purse. I wish it were a better one, but it was the most decent one they had. You will need it to carry your ticket. And I have put in the change. It would not do for you to be entirely without money. I'm sorry it isn't more. There are only nine dollars and seventy-five cents left. Do you think that will see you through? If there had been any place down town where I could cash a check at this time of night, I should have made it more."

"Thank you so much. I shall return the price of the ticket and this money as soon as possible," said the girl earnestly.

He suddenly became aware that the train was whistling and that the conductor was motioning him to go.

"But you have not told me your name," he cried in dismay.

"You have named me," she answered, smiling. "I am Mary Remington."

"But that is not your real name."

"You may call me Mary if you like," she said. "Now go, please, quick! I'm afraid you'll get hurt."

"You will remember that I am your friend?"

"Yes, thank you. Hurry, please!"

The train paused long enough for him to step in front of her window and wave his hat in salute. Then she passed on into the night, and only two twinkling lights, like diminishing red berries, marked the progress of the train until it disappeared in the cut. Nothing was left but the hollow echoes of its going, which the hills gave back.

DISEASE FOLLOWS THE PEST

Methods of Exterminating Deadly Insect Are Bringing Satisfactory Results in Nearly Every City—Minnesota State Entomologist's Report a Model For All to Follow.

Figured out in money, to say nothing of the loss in human life, the cost to the United States annually of supporting its fly population amounts to $157,800,000, say government experts who have been making a study of the results of the germ spreading activities of the insects.

It is estimated that the fly is responsible for an expenditure of $50,000,000 for the handling of tuberculosis cases, attributable to germs spread by the pests, while $70,000,000 represents the cost of typhoid fever cases, originating in the same way. As a carrier of intestinal fever and summer complaint diseases and a transporting agency of dysentery the fly, scientists say, must be charged with an expenditure of $37,200,000 for the care of these diseases.

The statistics and the realization that thousands of human lives are being sacrificed annually because no method has been devised for abolishing the fly explain why health officials generally and the health departments of practically every municipality this summer are making active efforts to arouse citizens to the importance of keeping the pests away from their food supplies and places of habitation.

Results Are Gratifying.

Satisfactory results are being obtained in nearly every city where anti-fly campaigns are in progress. In almost every one there has been a noticeable falling off in the size of the pest horde, a fact that is almost daily commented upon by the inspectors of the local health departments.

In most cities the warfare on the fly was inaugurated with a cleanup campaign. After that the method consisted principally of bringing to the attention of citizens by means of educational posters, letters and newspaper articles suggestions for fly eradication that had been tried out with success previously.

A bulletin issued by the state entomologist of Minnesota embodies most of the methods by which the deadly pest may be exterminated and is a model for cities conducting or planning an anti-fly crusade.

"In the early spring clear up all refuse heaps, filth of all kinds, manure piles, garbage heaps, old cans, trash of every sort and abolish as far as possible other places where flies may breed," states the report of the Minnesota entomologist. "Screens should be used freely on all doors and windows. The prompt disposal of garbage should be arranged for, and swill barrels and garbage cans should be tightly closed. Use some form of fly trap with the proper bait and continuously place it where it will do the most good."

Other Precautionary Measures.

Other precautions suggested by the Minnesota official and indorsed by health authorities everywhere are the following:

"Do not build a stable near dwelling house; arrange for prompt removal of stable manure from your vicinity and keep manure covered and in dark until removed. Keep your premises clean, as free as possible from filth of all kinds, slop water, garbage and refuse heaps. If your neighbor allows such nuisances upon his own premises complain of him to your board of health."

"A safe and effective poison is made by adding three teaspoonsful of formalin in a pint of half milk and half water. This is particularly useful where flies do not have access to other sources of moisture. It should be kept out of the reach of children and might be placed in a Mason fruit jar inverted in a shallow dish and so arranged as to feed the liquid into the dish as fast as needed, or it might be poured into an open dish and placed near the sink or wherever flies gather. Other sources of moisture should be kept away from them."

RELIC OF ROAD AGENT DAYS.

Century Old Express Safe Found in a Stone Wall.

While repairing the state highway at the top of Conococheague mountain, near Concord, Md., Ralph Hopple and Elias Snyder, who were tearing down a stone wall, found an express money box of heavy sheet iron, lined with wood. The lid was partly open, and the lock had been sprung with an iron hook found near the box.

It is thought the box was in the old stone wall for more than a century and was placed there by a gang of robbers that infested that section in the days of stagecoaches.

Judge William J. Malone of Bristol, Conn., and Dillon Wallace of New York, the well known Labrador explorer, have gone to the Labrador plateau on an exploring expedition. Their object is to trace Lost river, which empties into Lake Michikama.

HIS CHANCE.

Mr. Henpeck (reading paper)—I've just read about a girl in the far west who had a bad man arrested and then decided to marry him. What do you think of that?

Mrs. Henpeck—It looks like going from bad to worse.

THE KIND THEY FOOL.

Fred—Some girls are awfully conceited.

Jack—Why? Fred—They'll brag about making a fool of a man that was never anything else.

IT SURE HAS.

Mrs. Askitt—Tom, what does a man mean when he says "I'll stand pat?" Mr. Askitt—It has cost many a man a whole lot of money to investigate that phrase.

JUST THINK OF IT

Lazy—It says in dis paper, dat Mars is 38,000,000 miles from de earth, pardner.

Hazy—Great hobos! Think of tramping dat distance an' den getting chased by de old Dog star.

JUST THE THING.

Grace—You've seen that fall gown of mine. Now I want to get a hat to match it. What would you suggest?

Helen—Why not get a slouch?

RALPH W. MOSS

Indiana Representative Returns From an Important Trip Abroad.

REPRESENTATIVE MOSS IS BACK FROM EUROPE

Returns With Views About Bettering Our Farms.

Washington, July 28.—Ralph W. Moss, Indiana representative, has returned from an important mission abroad, which kept him away from the capital thirteen weeks. He was here but a few hours, departing almost at once for his home in Indiana.

Representative Moss went to Europe at the head of a commission to study the agricultural systems of the leading countries with a view to devising some plan that will make money cheaper and more easily available for the agricultural class in the United States, to the end that agriculture may be developed along broad, scientific lines.

The other members of the commission were Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield of Massachusetts, C. J. Owens of Washington, Dr. John Lee Coulter of the census bureau and Colonel Harvey Jordan of Atlanta.

Mr. Moss returned convinced that the rebuilding of agriculture in the United States is more vital than the army and navy to the country, and he has distinct ideas as to how it may be done. He found that Germany, with a soil that by nature is much more sterile than that of the United States, raises an average of forty to sixty bushels of wheat per acre. Some of the things that must be done in the United States, Mr. Moss says, are to restore the fertility of the soil, construct better roads, improve the quality of live stock, adopt better methods of tillage, largely increase the number of cattle and other live stock, introduce a higher standard of agricultural education, and last, but by no means least, put into force reforms that will enable farmers to get money on convenient terms and at lower rates of interest than now prevail.

As acting chairman of the commission Mr. Moss will at once begin preparing his report to congress.

RENEWED TENSION EXISTS

Situation in the Copper Region Is Far From Serene.

Calumet, Mich., July 28.—Renewed tension exists in the Michigan copper district as a result of the parade and mass meeting of 5,000 striking miners Sunday. The parade and mass meeting were orderly and no attempts were made by the troops to interfere.

The Western Federation officials addressed the gathering, assailing Governor Ferris for sending troops and predicting he would go down in history with Governor Peabody of Colorado.

Resolutions protesting against the presence of troops were adopted.

She Will Run Independent.

Petersburg, Ind., July 28.—Mrs. Fannie Patterson, who was recently appointed by the Republicans to fill out her husband's unexpired term as town clerk, failed to file in time for the primaries today and will run in the election this fall on an independent ticket.

WILL SETTLE IT BY ARBITRATION

No Railway Strike Is the Good Word.

HAD A PEACEFUL OUTCOME

Disputants in Industrial Wrangle That Threatened to Tie Up Eastern Roads Have Decided to Submit Their Differences to Mediation Board, the Railway Managers Making Important Concession to Secure This End.

New York, July 28.—The long talked of strike of the conductors and trainmen of forty-five eastern railroads for higher wages and improved working conditions will not be called. Articles of agreement to arbitrate under the Newlands act the questions at issue have been signed by the employers' representatives and the conference committee of railroad managers.

The peaceful outcome of the dispute was the result of efforts made by the board of mediation and conciliation recently created in the hurriedly passed Newlands act to meet the situation. The board, consisting of Judge William Lea Chambers, Judge Martin A. Knapp and G. W. W. Hangar brought about the agreement after conferences with the disputants which continued more than a week.

With the elimination of the eight grievances for which the railroads desired consideration, the articles of arbitration comprise, without alteration, the sixteen original demands presented by the conductors and trainmen. The only point gained by the railroads was a provision that the award of the board of arbitration, to be later constituted of six members, shall take effect Oct. 1 next instead of May 1 last, the date requested by the employees.

The articles were signed on behalf of the men by W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and A. B. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors; and for the railroads by Elisha Lee, chairman of the conference committee of railroad managers.

COMPLICATES THE SITUATION

Washington Busy Digesting This Late Bit of Information.

Washington, July 28.—Official circles of the capital were startled by information obtained by Edward I. Bell, well known as an owner of newspapers in Mexico, that more than 100,000 Japanese are quartered throughout Mexico and that 20,000 of them are in and about Mexico City in position to be concentrated within three days for any enterprise which may seem desirable to the Japanese ministry at the Mexican capital. There are 5,000 Japanese in Mexico City proper, 5,000 more in the outlying suburbs of the federal district, and 10,000 in towns, cotton mills and haciendas of easy access to the capital by rail, with 80,000 in the interior and in towns along the Pacific coast.

The information is that all are engaged in menial employments and that when dressed as the usual Mexican peon, they are not at once distinguished from the natives with whom they mingle. The section through which the easily available 20,000 are scattered carries a normal population of 2,000,000, largely peons.

DOUBLE WRECK ON LEHIGH

Fast Train Crashed Into Wreckage of Two Freights.

Easton, Pa., July 28.—One dead, several injured and the Lehigh Valley main line piled with the wreckage of two freight trains and a fast passenger train, is the result of a double wreck which occurred at Slatington. Two freight trains collided rear end. The caboose and several cars of the first freight were demolished, killing the conductor, who was caught in the caboose, and mangled the engine of the second freight.

The wrecked and derailed freight cars and the engine were thrown on the westbound passenger tracks just as a fast passenger was due. The passenger train, running at the rate of fifty miles an hour, crashed into the mass of wreckage and contributed an engine and three coaches to the mass.

COMBINED FORCES BEATEN

Three Divisions of Mexican Rebels Defeated by Federals.

Mexico City, July 28.—The combined rebel forces of Generals Elizende, Garcia and Sanchez, 2,500 men in all, were badly defeated in a battle in the north by 11,000 federals under command of Lieutenant Colonel Ramirez. The federals used their artillery to good effect. The rebels had no cannon. The rebels lost more than 200 in killed and 300 were taken prisoners. The federals also captured 100 pack mules laden with provisions and an enormous quantity of munitions of war. The federal losses are not given.

TOO MUCH RAIN FOR BALL GAME

Weather Man Keeps Arcadians and Indianapolis Specials From Getting Together Yesterday.

Y. M. I. TEAM COMING SUNDAY

Old Favorite of Fans, "Nick" Tompkins Will be Seen in Rushville Uniform.

Rain yesterday afternoon shortly before time to call the game between Rushville and the Indianapolis Specials brought disappointment to several hundred fans. The grounds were so wet that it was impossible to play. Both teams were at the park and were as disappointed as the fans.

The Rushville team was especially anxious to play the game with the Specials as the team was out for revenge for the defeat handed out early in the season. One thing is certain and that is that rain saved one of the teams from defeat.

Next Sunday the Y. M. I. team of Cincinnati comes for a return game. A week ago Rushville defeated the Y. M. I. team after thirteen innings of play and the contest Sunday should be a battle. The Y. M. I. team defeated Elwood yesterday 5 to 1 which shows that they have the class. Conway did not pitch for them yesterday but will likely be in the box here Sunday. Conway pitched a swell game here in the first meeting of the two teams. One of the largest crowds of the year is expected Sunday as the fans know that a real ball game can be expected.

The Rushville team had the game yesterday been played, would have presented a weakened line up. With Pierce out of the game the outfield would have suffered and then along came George Orme, the new third baseman, and received a sprained ankle in a game at Plainfield Saturday. The injury to Orme is not expected to keep him out of the Sunday but Pierce will be out for a month. Orme is said to be very fast on the bases and should help the team.

The management will give an old Rushville favorite a chance in the game next Sunday with the Y. M. I. team. The old favorite is Herman "Nick" Tompkins. "Nick" has returned from Carlsbad, New Mexico, and is anxious to play with the Arcadians. He has been playing ball in New Mexico and is said to be as good as when he used to play here. It has been several years since the fans here have seen "Nick" in action and they promise to give him a hearty welcome next Sunday. Tompkins will probably be played in the outfield. He should prove a valuable addition to the team and his services are needed as the team faces two very hard games in the Y. M. I. and Newcastle games.

FINED BY MAYOR.

Hugh Bedworth was fined one dollar and costs this morning by Mayor Black on the charge of public intoxication. He was arrested Saturday night by Policeman Walter after a trip to Connersville. His fine of $11 was stayed.

The L. A. of the A. O. H. will have regular meeting in their lodge rooms tomorrow evening. All members are requested to be present.

MEACHAMS WIN OUT IN NINTH

Close Game is Won by Presbyterians Who Get to Rogers in Last Inning.

HIGGS PITCHES SWELL GAME

Lets Christians Down With Four Scattered Hits and Strikes Out Twelve Men.

LEAGUE STANDING.

	W.	L.	Pct
Flatrock	2	0	1.000
Presbyterians	3	2	.600
Christians	2	3	.400
Methodists	1	3	.250

The Presbyterian team in the Sunday school league cinched its hold on second place at the expense of the Christian team Saturday afternoon and incidently drew closer to the top of the league standing and are in a position to take the lead should the Flatrock team ever fall. The score was 6 to 4.

The game was one of the best played thus far in the league. It was the first overtime contest and went full nine innings. At the start of the ninth the score was tied each team having one run. For eight innings the team battled along neither side having an advantage but in the first of the ninth the Christian team blew and the Presbyterians counted five times.

The Christians was the first to score counting one run in the third inning. This did not stop the Presbyterian team and the score was tied up in the fifth. Higgs pitching for the Presbyterians was in rare form and pitched a remarkable game. The first hit was made off him in the fifth and for the entire nine rounds he allowed only four bingles. All of the four hits were well scattered and at no time did he show signs of weakening.

The Christians started a ninth inning rally which fell short by two runs. Old "E. I." was sure right and besides allowing only four hits struck out twelve men. The Jacksenian battery was in fine shape and backed up by good support carried off the game. The contest was closer than the score indicates as the score was tied up until the start of the ninth. Rogers on the mound for the Christians pitched a nice game but was given poor support.

The fatal ninth was one big inning for the Presbyterians. Nine men faced Rogers in this frame and the five runs came as the result of three hits, three errors and several bone plays. The five runs were enough to win and the game was lost in this frame. Outside of the ninth the hits off Rogers were scattered.

RUSH COUNTY WOMAN HEIR

Elizabeth Siler Benefitted by Will of Mary C. Brosius.

The will of Mary C. Brosius, who died near Knightstown a few days ago, has been offered for probate and spread on record, says the Newcastle Courier. Under the terms of the will, which was drawn July 3, 1897, the residue of the estate, which is valued at $6,000, is divided between Jacob Brosius of Kansas, Elizabeth Siler of Rush county, and Ada Brosius. The latter is given one-fifth of the residue and the other four-fifths are to be divided between the other two. A bequest of $5 is given to each of the following: John, George, Joseph, Amanda, Ella and Eva Brosius and Ann E. Holt. John Siler is named as executor of the estate.

Miss Belva Mays of Raleigh spent Sunday here visiting her brother Roy Mays, and wife at their home in West Fourth street.

A telephone has been installed at the chaletaqua grounds. The number is 3365.

INSINCERITY WORST TRAIT

useful to those following or wishing to follow the Christian life.

In the prayer, the Rev. Mr. Roberts continued, asked that the Philippians' love might abound more and more. He assumed that they already loved one another. The preacher likened the abundance of God's infinite love to the ocean which, he recalled, an old woman said was the only thing in the world of which there seemed to be enough. Paul prayed that the love of the Philippians' love may abound more and more in knowledge. Knowing is a necessary quality, the speaker said, because Christians need to know God because they will never love Him as they should until they do.

"As you come to know God, His word and His world, continued the minister, "you will come to love them all more. You ought to know his fellowmen better. You know there are lots of us who don't like certain people because, as we think, we know too much about them. Rather we know too little because we see only the bad. We will find the good to everyone."

Paul also prayed, the minister said, that the love of the Philippians abound more and more in keen spiritual conception. A befogged vision does no go in good Christian work, he declared.

Paul wanted the Philippians to be able to test the things that differ, to be sincere and without offense, Mr. Roberts pointed out. He recalled that discernment was a good quality that was seldom found. He urged that insincerity be guarded against by Christians.

In the parlance to today, according to the Rev. Mr. Roberts, Paul also prayed that the Philippians not be knockers. He urged them to be sincere, but without offense. No other agency, the minister declared, drive more people from the church than the hard-hearted, sincere Christians who are looking for someone to offend.

"Not until the life of Jesus Christ," he said, "is grafted on to the old stump of our personality and most of the old hulk is cut away is our work fruitful. We are all naturally sour. Everything in every department of the church should be done to the glory of God.

"Too many people nowadays are working in the church for the glory of No. 1. If you are accented by this spirit, get out. You are a dead body inside a living organization. You need no taffy. Your Lord was spit upon, and are you not any better than He?"
